Dust: Met with a fair demand. Prices were generally easier and there were some withdrawals. CD's met with reduced interest. Plain types were generally neglected.

Comment: Blenders were the major contenders whilst Loose Tea Traders were less active than last. Well-made good liquoring types met with good support and prices were generally firm to little dearer following quality. Others met with a good demand at generally around last levels. Plain and reprint teas met with selective interest and suffered substantial withdrawals. Dust was an easier market.
